

Doctor of Nursing Practice (DNP)

Degree Program

The Doctor of Nursing Practice academic degree requires a minimum of 70 nursing graduate credit hours and a minimum of 1,000 post-baccalaureate practice hours. Students with a BSN degree can enter the program through the BSN to DNP track, while students with an MSN degree can enter the program through the MSN to DNP track.

BSN-DNP Track

The BSN-DNP program is an online curriculum with four required on-campus, three-day “Intensives” and a minimum of 70 nursing graduate credit hours. In addition, a minimum of 600 direct patient-care practice hours for nurse practitioner students or 600 leadership residency practice hours are part of the minimum 1,000 required residency hours. The full-time, three-year program (nine semesters) consists of 5-11 credit hours per semester. The part-time, four-year program (12 semesters) consists of 5-9 credit hours per semester. While most course work is on-line, there are some courses that have “live” or synchronous virtual classrooms.
